Andrew Morby Enjoying his 100th Birthday Party

Andrew Morby died of complications resulting from a severe case of Pneumonia. He died very quickly and with very little suffering. Up until the last 5 hours before his death he was vibrant and in total possession of his senses. Just prior to his death he had been in the process of teaching himself Arabic

A Love Story

Andrew and Velda's life together represents a true love story.

Their interests were totally compatible, his focus being language and literature, and hers being art and writing. Velda was impressive in her own right, having painted hundreds of paintings, having written "Art in the Silver Circle" in the Journal for over 15 years and having been president of Nevada's Pen Women & PEO. Together they traveled the world, with Andrew playing the guitar, as Velda painted some far away scene. Velda, age 99 is still living.

Early Morby Family

Andrew's Father was David Charles Morby, born in Gothenberg, Sweden. His Mother was Margaret McClure Morby, born in Irvine, Scotland. Andrew was the oldest of four children, the other three being Janet Morby Swindel, William Morby, both deceased, and Margaret Galleron, his youngest sister, who is still living in Sparks.

The Jeffrey Morby Family

Andrew and Velda's son is Jeffrey Morby, who lives with his wife, Jacqui Morby, in Pittsburgh, PA. Their children (A & V's grandchildren) are Drew Morby, living in Cherry Hill, NJ, and Michelle Morby, living in San Francisco, CA. Mark Warren, Jeff's cousin, was very close to Andrew. He and his wife, Marsha, live in Reno
